SYMPHONY CONCERT DEBUTANTES HOLD ONE OF INTEREST

Performance of Concerto by Rachmaninov.

MUSIC BY DEBUSSY PLAYED PARTY FOR HAYDEN TWINS

m was first played here by Raoul Pugno, eminent French pianist, at a Russian mphony Society concert on November Mrs. Arthur J. Singer, Mr. and Mrs. 18, 1905. It rested then till November 12, when Tina Lerner attempted it.

But the concerto is one with which a real artist may come before an audience with dignity, and with which he can disclose the best qualities of his playing. Mr. Gabrillowitsch is a musician of singularly fine fibre, of exquisite faste, of genuine temperament and of large technical ability. His performance of his countryman's concerto yesterday was a brilliant achievement. He played the strenuous portions of the work with immense power and with great opulence of color. In the tenderer parts he disclosed a lovely insight and a most admirable.

as a whole brought out all that was best in it and made it interesting even in its most tenuous passages. Mr. Gabrilowitsch has grown steadily in artistic stature since he first came to this country, and must now be accorded a position in the very small body of players who unite force, brilliancy and intellectual quality and the power to publish emotion. The accompaniment furnished by Mr. Damrosch and his men was of the best kind.

It is not necessary at this time to put forth an essay on the other two works on the programme. They are not unknown to local music lovers, and both were excellently performed by the musicians of the Symphony Society orchestra. The programme will be repeated at the concert of to-morrow afternoon.

It has been played since that time, but not in a noteworthy manner. The composition, like many others, improves upon repetition, but it must always rely largely on the excellence of its performance. It is good if not great music, and when interpreted with sympathy and high technical skill must always be agreeable to hear.

That it contains ideas of genuine beauty is indisputable and in some pages of their treatment the composer has sung his instrumental song with poetry. But there are other pages in which the connection is not clear and the impression is made that the composer is concealing his want of resource with a prodigal display of plano virtuosity.

But the concerto is one with which a real artist may come before an audience.

Mrs. Charles H. Tweed held a reception lovely insight and a most admirable correction of the composition a whole brought out all that was best in the control of the colony club to introduce her second daughter. Miss Mary
